

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A smart card for executing a plurality of transaction types. The smart card has a card substrate, and a microchip embedded in the card substrate. The smart card also includes a magnetic medium on the card substrate. The at least one of the microchip and the magnetic medium contains information for executing a plurality of transaction types, which includes at least a medical transaction, a financial transaction, and an e-commerce transaction.